Coming up on Tuesday, October 31

Canadian rock icon Tom Cochrane is back, with the release of his first album in eight years, "No Stranger". He joins Shelagh today on Sounds Like Canada to talk about why this album took three to make, and what he's been up to for the other five since we've last heard from him. Hear some of his new tracks, and find out if Shelagh can convince him to perform live.

Highlights from Monday, October 30

Dr. Daniel Pauly (runs 22:21)

Dr. Daniel Pauly, a fisheries scientist from the University of British Columbia, returns for an encore chat with Shelagh about the alarming state of the world fisheries and oceans, and why he struggles to understand and protect the oceans even after suffering a stroke last year.

From April 19, 2006

 Dr. Daniel Pauly (runs 26:03)

For a bit more context, listen to the first interview Shelagh had with University of British Columbia's Dr. Daniel Pauly, one of the most influential fisheries scientists in the world, about his passion for the world's oceans, and his fears for the future.

NOTE: The music has been removed from applicable interviews, due to copyright restrictions.
